Housekeeping

- Memo #2 is due next week!
  - Cite the readings using a particular citation form. Define the sociological concept and cite where you got it (other than lecture slides).
  - Don't cite lecture slides; Those also don't count as references.
  - Use a new article for discussion than Memo 1
  - Apply the ideas from the course.
- 91% mean for last week's quiz!

Class Recap & Discussions

1. Why do sociologists claim that sex, gender, and sexuality are distinct terms?
2. What are the different ways of determining sexuality? Do they have similar predictive power of people's lives?

Fun (and not so fun) readings

Be my teacher please (Experience, observations, conceptual clarification):

1. What's your take on Wade's "hookup culture"?
2. What about Pascoe's ethnographic research of the f-slur and the construction of masculinity in high school?
-> What characteristics of sexuality are stigmatized? Why? Any gender differences?
3. How do these readings relate to the idea that sexuality and sexual pleasure are disciplined and shaped by social forces?

Reactions?

1. What do you find most fascinating (or repulsive?) about this video?
2. What does this ad indicate about women–male relationship in America?
3. How do we make of the idea of the “commodification of the female body”?
  - > What’s women’s own role in this? (e.g., More females take selfies than males in all global cities a research team looked at. How?)

A fundamental link between human civilization, gender, and sex

(Don't) remember him!...

Sigmund Freud (1856–1939)

- Founder of psychoanalysis

Before you dismiss him...

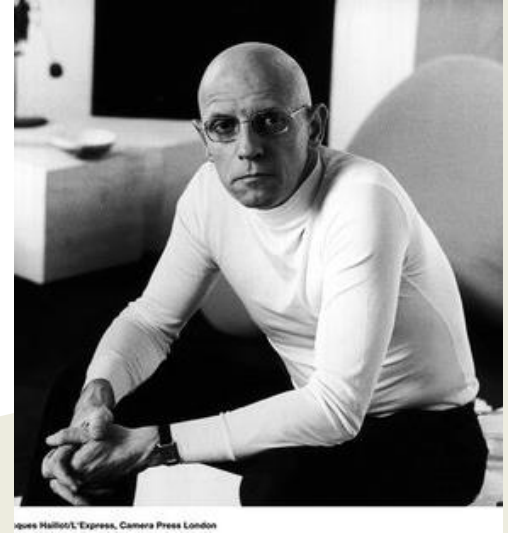

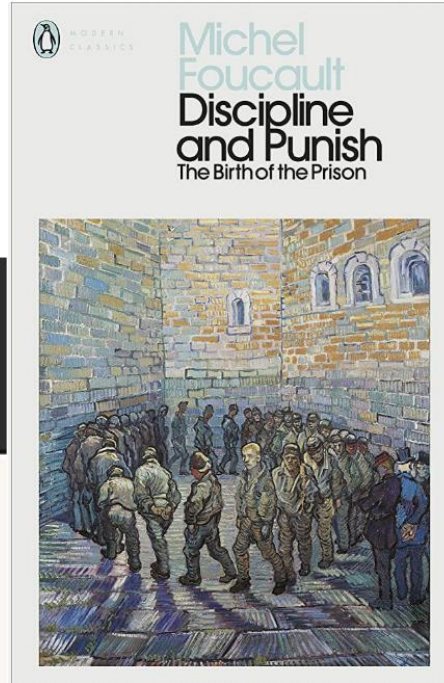

- What underlies “normality”?
- Parallel theory of individuals’ sexualized bodies and societal developments (e.g., the superego, 3 fundamental distinctions that make civilization possible)
- The repression of sexual desires (whole-body to fixation to the genital)
- Continued influence on today’s feminist, queer & radical theories, apart from applications in clinical therapy. (e.g., Judith Butler Gender Trouble and...

Questions:

1. What do you personally feel are the implications of the law for Indonesian society, and women in particular?
2. How can we make sense of the apparently different reactions towards the ban in Indonesia(n) vs English media?
